

Recipients of the David M. Stowe Fund for Mission Research, 2017

The David M. Stowe Fund for Mission Research was established by the Stowe family in 2003 to provide funds to support visiting researchers who come to the Yale Divinity Library to use its missions-related collections. The fund is typically made available to young scholars who plan to attend the biennial Yale-Edinburgh Group meeting hosted by the Divinity Library and intend to spend at least one week in residence in New Haven to use the Divinity Library's collections. See <http://divinity-adhoc.library.yale.edu/Yale-Edinburgh> for information about the Yale-Edinburgh Group. Other researchers are also supported upon application if they need to use resources at the Yale Divinity Library to complete their work.

Several young scholars received support from the Stowe fund for travel costs during the 2016-2017 fiscal year. The six researchers who attended the Yale-Edinburgh Group conference and did research at the library in June-July 2017 are shown below.

Yaqoob Khan Bangash, Director, Centre for Governance and Policy, IT University, Lahore, Pakistan

Frederick Glover, Ph.D. candidate, University of Calgary

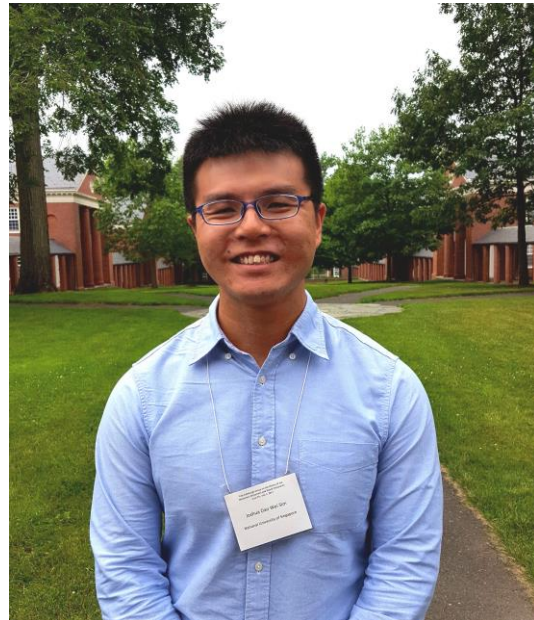

Malin Gregersen, Researcher, Linnaeus University, Sweden

Joseph Ho, Assistant Professor, Albion College

Abraham Kwakye, Lecturer, University of Ghana, Legon

Joshua Dao Wei Sim, Ph.D candidate, National University of Singapore