GENERAL STATEMENT

The increasing demand for well trained men and women for service in connection with our National Program of Social and Economic Reconstruction is proven by the fact that every municipal government has established a Bureau of Social Affairs in which a number of trained men and women are engaged for the definite purpose of improving the conditions of the masses of the people whose standard of life must be raised; it is further proved by the action taken on the part of the Government to make general survey of every province with a view to devising proper means by which the conditions of life of our people may be ameliorated. Moreover, an extensive program is being formed by the National Institute of Research for the application of scientific methods for social and economic development and amelioration.

In order to carry out such programs trained men and women are urgently needed. If we take social survey and other social investigations as examples we know that without scientific training such a task can never be satisfactorily accomplished.

DEMAND FOR WORKERS

The demand for trained workers along the line of sociology and social work is shown by the fact that within the last few years applications have come in for trained workers in the following types of service:

- Government and private institutions for social betterment
- Industrial welfare work
- Teachers of social science
- Mass education
- Rural social work
- Family case work agencies
- Hospital social service
- Social surveys and researches
- Community work institutions
- Institutional churches
- Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.
- Prisons and courts

ESTIMATES OF EXPENSES

The tuition, board and room for a school years (2 semesters) is about $200.00. There are also expenses for books, and certain deposits and fees, as well as expenditures for student activities. It is estimated that the total expenses of a student at the University need not exceed $400.00 a year. For details of expenses, consult Yenning University Bulletin, "General Information".

FELLOWSHIPS AND SCHOLARSHIPS.

Prospective students should write for particulars concerning special fellowships and scholarships that may be added from time to time. When graduate students prefer to take a number of years for the degree sought, a very limited number of positions are usually available for part-time work, such as teaching in the Middle School, social work or social surveys under the auspices of a social agency in Peking, and others.

Departmental Scholarships. Several scholarships of from $150 to $300 a year are being offered by the Department. Consult the Chairman of the Department for detailed information.

Special Scholarships. From time to time special scholarships will be awarded in return for which special work may be done. For information concerning these special scholarships enquire of the Chairman of the Department.

Assistantship. There will usually be available one or more part-time assistantships in the Department which may be utilized profitably by students who have had some teaching or field work experience with very high scholastic record.

PUBLICATIONS AND RESEARCH.

The instructors in this Department edit the Sociological World which is an annual journal in Chinese devoted to Chinese Social problems and social thinking. Vol. I appeared in June 1927 and is now already out of print. Vol. II was issued in June 1928 by the Pu She, Peking. The Commercial Press, Shanghai took over the publication of the journal beginning with Vol. III, 1928. In addition to the journal, the Department has issued a number of pamphlets, syllabi, and survey questionnaires.

Research is also emphasized in the work of the Sociology Club whose membership includes both instructors and students of the Department. Meetings are held generally every two weeks. One of the features of the Club is its monthly discussion meeting before which a research paper is presented by one of the members. Sometimes outside speakers are invited to address the Club on topics on which the speaker is a recognized authority.

The presence of the University in the old Capital of China and the very cordial relations existing between the Department and the agencies and institutions of Peking, Shanghai, Nanking and other cities, provide exceptional opportunities for social research. Moreover, the University students can readily have access to good libraries in Peking, including the Chinese Social and Political Science Association Library, the Metropolitan Library, the National University Library, the Tsing Hua University Library, and the Library of the Yenching School of Chinese studies. In addition, the University library has one of the best collections of sociological works in China.

DEPARTMENTAL REPORT NO. IX, 1929-1930

I. INTRODUCTION

On March 17, 1930 upon the request of Chancellor Wu a detailed report on the research and extension work undertaken under the auspices of the Department was presented by the Chairman before the University Assembly; and was subsequently printed in Sociology Fellowship News No. 4 for general circulation. (1) This report may be regarded as a continuation of the earlier report.

II. COURSES AND CURRICULUM

One of the most significant achievements this year was perhaps the standardization of the sociology and social work curriculum. Briefly speaking the work of the Department was divided into four major divisions:

1. Anthropology and Theoretical Sociology;
2. Social legislation and Industrial Welfare;
3. Social Service Administration; and
4. Social Research and Statistics.

III. THE STAFF

At the beginning of this year five members were added to the teaching staff. Dr. Herbert A. Miller, Professor of Sociology of Ohio State University, was visiting professor for the first semester. Prof. Miller conducted a seminar on sociological interpretation of nationalism. Dr. Jefferson D. H. Lamb, formerly head of the Department of Sociology of the University of Nanking, joined our staff as Professor of Social Legislation and Industrial Welfare. Mr. Chang Hung-ohün, who received B. A. from Yenching in 1925 and later M. A. from the School of Social Service Administration of the University of Chicago, was called back to help organizing the social work courses. Mr. Maxwell Stewart was transferred from the Department of English to this Department to teach Social Statistics, Urban Sociology, Population, and Social Ideals of Literature. Mr. Yen Ching-yueh who received B. A. from Yenching in 1928 and M. S. in 1929, was asked to stay in the Department as Instructor in Criminology and short courses in social work and social problems. In addition, Mr. David New was appointed half time assistant during the first semester to help in general instruction; Mr. Yü En-te and Mr. Wan Shu-yung were appointed part-time assistants the second semester to help in extension work.

Among our honorary lecturers, Miss Pruitt gave a course in Social Case Work; Dr. Lennig Sweet a course in Social Service among Youth Groups; Mr. R. I. Forbes a course on Recreation and Play; Prof. Hsu Ti-shan a course on Social Anthropology; and Miss C. Mills a course

IV. STUDENT ELECTIVES AND STUDENT ACTIVITIES

The total of major students increased from forty-nine in 1928-29 to fifty-four this year. The following table indicates an increase in all undergraduate classes.

Mr. Y. S. Djang of International Famine Relief;
Prof. Geoffrey Chen of National Research Institute;
Mr. L. K. Tao of Peping Social Research Institute;
Dr. Li Ting-an of Peking Public Health Station;
Mrs. Rutter, English Penologist to the Institute of Pacific Conference at Kyoto; and Prof. Howard Woolston of the University of Washington.

The class fellowships have been exceedingly active. This year's experience has proved that this system is a very successful way to promote intimate acquaintance among fellow-students in sociology. Indeed the old saying has become true that "a class fellowship is a class family". In January, Yenching sociology students at Shanghai organized a Shanghai Sociology Fellowship with Mr. Fang Fu-an as chairman. Reports indicate that the Shanghai Fellowship is also doing splendid work.

We are very sad to report the death of Miss Huang Chiao-yün, '25, and Mr. Lu Feng-chun of the class of 1931. Miss Huang was one of our most capable graduates; and since graduation she had been actively engaged in women's movement in China. Mr. Lu was also a good student and a very faithful worker. Our sympathy is being sent to their respective families.

V. EXTENSION AND RESEARCH

Since the report was made on March 17 1930. there her senior assistants to Yenching as field director in case work agency. Miss Li En-fu a Yenching graduate and assistant in Miss Pruitt's Department for three years, was asked to give resident supervision of all kinds of case work under the auspices of the Department here.

In June Commencement fourteen students received B. A. in Sociology, one student received M. A. in Sociology, and one student received M. S. and Vocational Certificate in Social Work. Their names together with the title of their thesis are indicated below:

- Miss Chou Li-chiu, M.S. in Social Service Administration, "A Sociological Analysis of 250 Obstetric Cases of the Social Service Department of Peking Union Medical College".
- Mr. Fang Fu-an, M.A. in Industrial Welfare, "A Sampling Study of Labour Conditions in Shanghai".
- Mr. Chang Che-kuei, B.A., "Population Survey of Ta Wang Lo, Ting Hsien".
- Mr. Chao Ch'eng-hsin, B.A., "A Study of Land Distribution of a Village in Canton".
- Mr. Liang Chuan-chin, B.A., "Social Policies and Welfare Activities of Christian Institutions in China from 1912-1929".
- Mr. Lin Yueh-ming, B.A., "Charity Institutions in Peking".
- Mr. Tai Yun-feng, B.A., "Social Thought of St. Paul".
- Mr. T'ian Hsi-tseng, B.A., "The Social Program of British Labour Party".

The second conference was the sociology sectional meeting held in connection with the Bi-ennial meeting of the China Association of Christian Higher Education. A representative from Yenching was elected Chairman of the Conference and several papers and talks were given by Yenching teachers.

Fuller reports concerning these conferences appeared in the Sociology Fellowship News and the Sociological Review. One encouraging point was that three sociology conferences of national representation were held during this one year and that Yenching had never failed to take an active interest in the phenomenal development of modern sociological movement in China.

Moreover the Department has honored internationally by being authorized to establish the first international chapter of Alpha Kappa Delta Fraternity. Alpha Kappa Delta is an honorary sociology fraternity having for its purpose the encouragement of the scientific study of sociology and social work, and the promotion of fellowship among men of similar interest. The fraternity was originally founded in America and has established numerous chapters in colleges and universities throughout the United States. In March, 1930 this Department was authorized to establish the first or the Alpha Chapter of China. A senior or graduate student in sociology or social work, upon satisfaction of certain requirements, may be nominated for membership by the Executive Council of the chapter and be elected to membership meetings. The standards are: an average scholastic record of 80 in sociology, a good moral character, a socialized personality, manifestation of ability in research and a permanent interest in the field of society are held in the months of November and April.

VII. CONCLUSION

It has been remarked that 1929-1930 was the most successful year in the history of the Department. There was substantial progress in every line of its work. The curriculum was well standardized. The personnel for the different lines of work was fairly well settled. The general foundation for social theory, social legislation, and social service administration, for the different types of extension, laboratory and research work were laid. Above all, the esprit-de-corp among the members of the Department was appreciating. Everyone seemed to be thoroughly interested in the respective task; and all were working as one body for the development of the Department. It seemed that this year's satisfaction was the first fruition of many years of hard labor and struggle.

It should be noted also that there had been no change of fundamental policies this year and that there is still no sign of necessity of any change in the immediate future. Our main purpose is twofold: First, to apply anthropological, statistical and other scientific methods in social study, particularly in the study of Chinese social conditions; and secondly, when we are equipped with a mass of scientific social data, to improve the technique of social control either in the form of social legislation or in the form of social service administration. The Department continues to emphasize graduate and advanced work; and all kinds of research and extension are for the sake of methodological training.

VI. CONFERENCES AND SCIENTIFIC SOCIETIES

Mention should be made about the Sociology Conference held in Yenching in connection with the Formal Opening of the University. The Conference lasted three days and had four sessions. Twenty-eight papers were presented and most of these papers were results of individual research. Several of these papers have been included in the Departmental Series.

During the Winter vacation two sociology conferences were held in Shanghai; and Yenching was well represented in both. The first one was the Second Annual Convention of the Southeastern Sociological Society and the First National Convention of the Chinese Sociological Society. At this convention, the Chinese Sociological Society superseded the Southeastern Society. Several members of Yenching Faculty presented papers; and several were elected to their Executive Committee of the Society and the Editorial Board of the Sociological Review, a publication of the Society.

research. Mr. Yen Ching-yueh who was assisted by Messrs. Hsu Yung-shun, Yang Ching-kun and Tung Wen-tien have already completed the criminological survey in North China and the party is now in Shanghai to prepare the final report. The Chingho Rural Experiment Station was formally opened on June 14, 1930. The Station consisted of a newspaper and reading room, a lecture room, and a children's play room. The main items of work have been: community recreation of all kinds, agricultural extension, circulation library, children's work, women's work, mass education classes, periodic lectures, etc., etc. At the Formally Opening the attendance exceeded a thousand; and the speakers included local leaders as well as representatives from the University and from the Hopeh Provincial Government. Mr. H. C. Chang, Mr. S. Y. Wan and Miss Dora Bent have been primarily responsible for the formulation of plans and the execution of programs. Beginning with September Miss Wu Yu-chen will give half-time for work with children and girls.

The Sociology Library and Laboratory Room has grown. A new room was added, Mr. Yu En-te has thoroughly catalogued the research materials; and has established dozens of exchange connections with outside agencies. A catalogue is being compiled for the benefit of general readers.

As mentioned in the previous report, the Social Service Department of Peking Union Medical College has been considered the finest case work agency in China. Miss Pruitt, head of this Department and our honorary lecturer in case work, has always wanted our Department to have very intimate relation with her Department, and our students to receive the most trained discipline in case work. The way was made clear by loaning one of is due to two factors: First, practically all our own graduates had been able to find positions after graduation; and so they were prevented to continue their study in Yenching. Secondly, graduates of other universities have been, in most cases weak in their undergraduate preparation in sociology; and we have been obliged to decline a number of applications for admission into this Department for graduate work.

With reference to student activities, the Yenching Sociology Club, under the able leadership of Miss Liang I-sheng and Mr. Chang Che-kuei has had a very prosperous year. The Club actively participated in social service projects around Chengfu and other villages nearby the University. The Club issued a quarterly journal known as the Social Problem. The Club conducted a number of scientific meetings; and among the speakers to these meetings were:

- Professor Robert E. Park of the Univ. of Chicago;
- Professor H. A. Miller, our own visiting professor;
- Professor D. C. Jackson of M. I. T.;
- Professor A. J. Toynbee of London University;
- Dean C.H.Ho of Peking National University;

on Child Welfare Problems. The department hereby extends them its hearty thanks for their generous and voluntary service.

Dr. Burgess has been on leave of absence in America; and since January 1929 he has been working very strenuously on the endowment drive for the College of Applied Social Sciences. During the second term Mr. Yen was also given a leave of absence in order to help directing a criminological survey of four Northern provinces⁽³⁾ under the auspices of the National Research Institute of Social Sciences of Academia Sinica. At the end of the year Miss Newell and Mr. Stewart left for America; and the Department highly appreciated their service in Yenching.

We are pleased to report that Dr. Cato Young promised to return to the University next month and that four new members have been engaged for the coming year. Dr. Roberta White who recently received Ph.D. degree from Johns Hopkins University, will teach courses in child problems and social psychology; Miss Wang Chieh-I who studied at New York School of Social Work and Columbia University with M. A. from the latter institution after graduation from Yenching in 1925, will teach social service administration. Mr. Tsai Ko-hsuan, professor of statistics of Tsing Hua University, will teach "Social Statistics" here; and Mr. Chi Wen-fu who is teaching at Peking National University will give the course, "Chinese Social Thought". Moreover, Miss Wu Yü-chen, Yenching '29, will be assistant in Ching-Ho Experiment Station; and Miss Li En-fu, Yenching '26, will be assistant in the University Case agency. Arrangement is also made with the Department of Economics to have Mr. K. Chang help in the course, "Modern Social Movements". Mr. Chang has made first hand observation of the social have another division, namely, Rural Sociology. Previously a common set of required courses was for all sociology students; and the Chairman was to advise all sociology students irrespective their lines of specialization. Under the new system each division represented at least one line of specialization and had a different set of required courses. There was at least one adviser for each division; and the division adviser was responsible for the selection of courses and the advice of general problems for students in his division. Major students in sociology were required to choose a division for specialization not later than the junior year. This system should prepare the way for greater efficiency through division of labour, intimate faculty-student contact based upon academic specialization, and independent development of various lines of work under responsible leadership. Effort was also made to eliminate useless and duplicate courses, to add new courses, particularly courses, and to promote coordination of sociology courses with courses offered by other departments.

Statistics concerning sociology courses may be summarized as follows:

I. GENERAL INFORMATION

1. STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

The Department of Sociology and Social Work has as its purpose to prepare students: (1) for community service, including local self-government, model village building, mass education, and citizenship training; (2) for family and social welfare work either in connection with charitable institutions or with hospitals; (3) for social legislation and public welfare administration, including work in connection with the municipal bureaux of social welfare, with relief societies, with land bureaux, with health agencies, and with the legislature; (4) for industrial welfare work, including labor policies, industrial dispute and arbitration, industrial relationships, and the administration of labor laws; (5) for rural social work; (6) for corrective institutional work, such as prison administration, reformatory work, and police administration; (7) for teaching; and (8) for advanced study and research.

2. SOCIAL WORK TRAINING

This Department offers students special opportunity for professional training in social work and social survey—fields in which there has been a growing demand for workers in the last few years.

Practical work is the basis on which this type of training can be secured. During the past few years students in Yenching University have worked in mass education, in social research institutions, in government institutions, in community organization, in charitable relief, in service for people leaving hospitals, in boys' and girls' clubs, in citizenship training work, and on playgrounds.

This program has been made possible by the social institutions of Peking and elsewhere in China co-operating with Yenching University in training students to know how to do social work. During the course of study students are urged to select courses in social theory as well as in professional social work. Field work and class work are closely co-ordinated and field work is done in consultation with advisers and under the supervision of experienced social workers.

3. DEMAND FOR WORKERS

The demand for trained workers along the line of sociology and social work is shown by the fact that within the last few years applications have come in for trained workers in the following types of service:

Government and private institutions for social administration and social research
Industrial welfare work
Teachers of social science
Mass education
Rural social work
Family case work agencies
Hospital social service
Social surveys and researches
Community work institutions
Institutional churches and similar types of institutions
Prisons and courts

4. ESTIMATES OF EXPENSES

The tuition, board and room for a school year (2 semesters) is about $200.00. There are also expenses for books, and certain deposits and fees; as well as expenditures for student activities. It is estimated that the total expenses of a student at the University need not exceed $400.00 a year. For details of expenses, consult Yenching University Bulletin, "General Information".

5. FELLOWSHIPS AND SCHOLARSHIPS

Prospective students may write for particulars concerning special fellowships and scholarships that may be added from time to time. When graduate students prefer to take a number of years for the degree sought, a very limited number of positions are usually available for part time work, such as teaching in the Middle School, social work or social survey under the auspices of a social agency in Peking, and others.

Departmental Scholarships.—Several scholarships of from $150 to $200 a year are being offered by the Department. Consult the Chairman of the Department for detailed information.

Special Scholarships.—Special scholarships will be awarded from time to time in return for which special work may be done. For information concerning these scholarships enquire of the Chairman of the Department.

Assistantships.—There will usually be one or more part-time assistantships available in the Department, which may be utilized profitably by students who have had some teaching or field work experience with very high scholastic record.

In 1929-1930 the following students have received Departmental Scholarships of $150 each:

Mr. Chang Che-kuei
Mr. Liang Chuan-chin
Miss Tan Jen-chiu
Miss Yang Yun-tuan

Also the National Research Institute of Social Sciences, Academia Sinica, has established four special scholarships for field research in criminology, for $50 per month. The following students have been awarded the scholarship:

Mr. Hsu Yung-shun
Mr. Tung Wen-tien
Mr. Yang Ching-kun

6. RESEARCH, EXTENSION & PUBLICATIONS

The presence of the University in the old Capital of China and the very cordial relations existing between the Department and the agencies and institutions of Peking, Shanghai, Nanking and other cities, provide exceptional opportunities for social research. Moreover, the University students can readily have access to good libraries in Peking, including the Chinese Social and Political Science Association Library, the Peking National Library, the National University Library, the Tsing Hua University Library, and the Library of the Yenching School of Chinese studies. In addition, the University library has one of the best collections of sociological works in China.

For details of research work done under the auspices of the Department of Sociology, consult Department Publication Series B., No. 19.

In addition to research work the Department has initiated several types of extension work. They are: (1) Rural Community Work Experiment Station at Ching Ho; (2) Case work Agency at the University; (3) A Two-year Special Course in Social Work; (4) An One-year Short Course in Social Work conducted in the Chinese language; and (5) Sociology Laboratory and Reading Room. For details, also consult Department Publication Series B., No. 19.

The instructors of this Department edit the Sociological World which is an annual journal in Chinese devoted to Chinese social problems and social thinking. Volume I which appeared in June 1927 was published by the Department; Volume II was published in June, 1928 by the Pu She Press, Peking. The Commercial Press, Shanghai took over the publication of the Journal beginning with Volume III, 1929. In addition to the journal, the Department has issued a number of pamphlets, syllabi, and survey questionnaires. For a detailed list of publication, consult Departmental Publications Series E, No. 1.

7. ALPHA KAPPA DELTA

Alpha Kappa Delta is an honorary sociology fraternity having for its purpose the encouragement of the scientific study of sociology and social work, and the promotion of fellowship among men of similar interest. The fraternity was originally founded in America and has established numerous chapters in colleges and universities throughout the United States. In March, 1930 this Department was authorized to establish the first of the Alpha Chapter of China. A senior or graduate student in sociology or social work, upon satisfaction of certain requirements, may be nominated for membership by the Executive Council of the chapter and be elected to membership upon unanimous vote by those present at regular membership meetings. The standards are: an average scholastic record of G in sociology, a good moral character, a socialized personality, manifestation of ability in research and a permanent interest in the field of sociology. The regular semi-annual meetings of the society are held in the months of November and April.

8. YENCHING SOCIOLOGY CLUB AND CLASS FELLOWSHIPS

The membership of the Sociology Club includes both instructors and students of the Department, and its purpose is to stimulate interest in sociological study. The activities of the club are: public lectures, publications, discussion meetings, practical social service, and social surveys.

Since the year of 1927-28 each class among the major students in Sociology has organized a "class fellowship" such as graduate fellowship, senior fellowship, junior fellowship, sophomore fellowship and freshmen fellowship. So far the fellowships have continued to exist after students having left the University. In addition, local fellowships of Yenching Sociology students have come into existence, such as the Yenching Sociology Fellowship in Shanghai. The activities of the fellowships include periodical discussion meetings, presentation of scientific papers embodying the results of individual study, social meetings, debates, and so forth.

Old Ladies Home

YENTA RELIEF FEDERATION.

Readers of the Fellowship News will probably remember the Yenta Relief Federation which was formed last year under the leadership of the Sociology Department to co-ordinate all the relief work which was being done in Yenching.

Six agencies co-operated, and the work was divided into thorough divisions: the Investigation Division which made a study of budgets; the Emergency Division, and the Family Case Work Division. During the Winter 57 cases, including 172 persons were referred to us, and many were helped with food and clothing, and sometimes with gifts of money. However, our aim has not been to give simple relief, but whenever possible to find people opportunities to help themselves. In co-operation with the University six men were employed on remaking the road outside the East Gate of the University Campus, and this winter we are again hoping to find means to employ those who cannot keep themselves during the long winter. Eight other people were found sewing and other work, four were lent money to help them in setting up work of their own, and four children were sent to school.

Through our enquiries last winter we came across many sad cases, especially of old ladies who, as far as we could find out, had no relatives whatever, and no one to look after them. We helped them as far as funds would permit, but we knew that something different ought to be done. About this time one of the University Kung Ch'angs for women informed us that they had a house in Haitien, and we conceived the idea of putting this in order, and making of it an Old Ladies' Home. This suggestion met with a good deal of approval. The house has been repaired with money given by the Kung Ch'ang, and we are now ready to put as many as ten old ladies into it. The cost of keeping one old lady for one year will not be more than $50, including heat, food and clothing. A financial Committee has been formed to raise funds, and already visitors to Yenching (particularly from America) who have heard of this venture have given us over $300. We have estimated that the running expenses will be $600 a year, and that we shall need $300 this first year for capital expenditure. Three Sociology students - Miss Kuan Jui-wu, Miss Cheng Hui-chu, and Mr. Chang Chih-kung are the Committee in charge of the home arrangements with Miss Kuan as superintendent. Already three old ladies have been accepted, and are hoping to move in immediately.

The budget of the Federation this year, including the Old Ladies' Home, is $1,500, of which amount we still require at least $500, but we are hoping that it may be able to finance the Old Ladies' Home entirely from special contributions.

The Yenta Old Women's Home

Last winter, through inquiries of the Department of Sociology and Social Work, information came to hand of many sad cases, especially of old ladies who, so far as could be discovered, had no relatives whatever, and no one to look after them. They were helped as far as funds would permit, but it was felt that something more should be done. About this time one of the University Kung Ch'angs (industrial workrooms for women) informed the department that they had a house in a small town near Yenching which would be suitable for an old ladies' home. The house has been repaired and the money given by the Kung Ch'ang and the department is now ready to put as many as ten old women into it. The cost of keeping one old lady for one year will not be more than $50, including heat, food, and clothing.

Three old ladies are already installed under the care of a capable matron. Splendid work is being done by a group of Sociology students, under the direction of Mr. Chang Hung-chun, who have superintended the repairs to the house, furnished and equipped it, investigated all the cases reported, and who are now looking after the actual running of affairs. The house was first opened some weeks ago and three old women were received. But the idea was too new for them, these poor old beggarwomen. Why were they made to take baths, why were they permitted to leave the premises only once a week, why could they not bring in with them all their pitiful collection of rags, broken furniture, etc., and above all why were they being provided with house, food, and clothing, all free of charge? Their fears and suspicions were aroused and they fled. The flight of one was only temporary, however, and she is back again and quite happy now, though over eighty and blind in one eye. The other two have not returned, but two others have been found to fill their places.
